In Library of Congress, Manuscript Division.
In part, transcripts (typewritten)
Manufacturer and government official. Correspondence, speech and article files, book reviews, diary, clippings, biographical data, printed matter, notes, and drafts. Most correspondence is for the years 1928-53 and largely relates to Draper's career as Assistant Secretary of Commerce and as member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. The papers reflect Draper's concern with politics and education, and with unemployment, labor problems, and related economic matters. Some papers deal with his activities in private business, and with his services to various New York State and City agencies concerned with unemployment and labor. His diary, stirring times, gives data on Federal Reserve Board problems of the World War II period. Among the individual correspondents are Franklin D. Roosevelt, Daniel C. Roper, and Frances Perkins.

Correspondence, photos., and miscellaneous material, 1912-16 (including drafts of the 1912 Convention call of the Progressive Party, clippings, and speeches), depict Colby's early political activity. About 150 letters from Woodrow Wilson, 1917-23, pertain to foreign policy and personal affairs. Colby's political speeches, 1914-36, and scrapbooks covering early campaigns of the Progressive Party and Colby's trip to South America round out the collection. Correspondents include David Lloyd George, William Randolph Hearst, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Cordell Hull, Medill McCormick, Alfred E. Smith, John Spargo, and André Tardieu.

In University of Virginia Library (38-219, 660)
In part, transcripts.
Papers of the Rev. Robert Lewis Dabney, Presbyterian clergyman, comprise the bulk of the collection. These relate to Louisa County, Va., Hampden-Sydney College, and the University of Virginia, and supply details on Dabney's education, Civil War service, speeches, and writings. Among them is a description of the trial of Joseph G. Semmes, the student who in 1840 killed Professor John A. G. Davis of the University of Virginia. The transcripts of papers of General Thomas Jonathan Jackson in the D. Hill collection of the University of North Carolina were used by Dabney in his biography of Jackson. Includes pamphlets by Charles W. Dabney, president of the University of Cincinnati, as well as by R. L. Dabney, several pamphlets on Presbyterian seminaries, and an incomplete paper-bound set of the life of General Jackson. Among the names represented in the collection are John D. Andrews, Carter Berkeley, M. Chapline, Lord Cornwallis, Charles Dabney, Jedediah Hotchkiss, Thomas Cary Johnson, Robert Edward Lee, John Marshall, William Nelson, and Israel Perkins Warren.

Transcripts (handwritten)

Copies transcribed in 1897-99 by Zacharias from original papers in the Hague, Amsterdam, Zürich, Speyer, and other European cities. The records represent chiefly the history of the emigration of the church from Switzerland and the Palatinate and its relations with the Reformed Church in Holland (1742-93). Includes material on the history of the Waldensians. The most complete coverage is of the Dutch records. The collection overlaps that of William J. Hinke, but provides fuller coverage of the early European history of the church.

Papers of John Ball, Sr. and Jr., 1773-1802.

3211 items and 26 v.

In Duke University Library.

In part, transcripts (handwritten)

Rice planters, of Charleston, S. C. Personal and business correspondence, papers, and account books, largely for 1803-54. Business papers include receipts, bills, lists of slaves, descriptions of rice crops, and records of horse purchases; many business letters are from John Slater, a London commission merchant. Other business papers include accounts kept by John Ball, Jr., as guardian of his half brothers and sisters and administrator of his father's estate. Most letters after 1826 were written by the younger children of John Ball, Sr. and Martha Caroline (Swinton) Ball: Alwyn, Hugh Swinton, and Elias Octavus Ball. Many of these were written from schools in the North and reflect the attitudes of the younger moneyed class of the early 19th century. Correspondents include John Ewing Calhoun, William Drayton, Alexander Garden, Francis Huger, and members of the Laurens, Rutledge, Taveau, and other South Carolina families. Related collections in the library include the papers of Louis Manigault and Augustine Louis Taveau.

Confederate Army officer. Official correspondence, reports, military dispatches, and orders of Brent as assistant adjutant general of the Military District of the West, based at Augusta, Ga. Papers concern the affairs of the Georgia Railroad and indicate improper use of government transportation by private individuals; others relate to disorganization in Mississippi during the last months of the war. Includes detailed accounts of subsistence stories, railroad equipment, troop movements, ordnance depots, and supplies, after Sherman's march. Includes an official report of the medical director, Division of the West; and a general order signed by Brent. A letter from Leonidas Polk explains why he disobeyed orders, and one from Simon B. Buckner discusses the organization of the Dept. of Eastern Tennessee. The papers are significant in reflecting the inefficiency and incompetence with which Confederate logistical matters were conducted during the later stages of the Civil War.

Farmer and State legislator, of Walnut Grove, Walton Co., Ga. Largely correspondence; many of the earlier letters concerned with post-Civil War farming and business conditions, the employment of freed Negroes, and State politics (1867-68); some wartime letters on fighting in Florida, and lack of faith in Confederate currency. A group of letters deals with Brodnax's campaign for the State Legislature in 1890, and post-election appeals for patronage and office from his supporters. Some letters allude to temperance and Negro voting. Accounts of life at three Georgia colleges in the 1890's are found in letters from Brodnax's sons; later papers mainly consist of family correspondence and genealogical material, reflecting Brodnax's interest in family history.

Confederate surgeon and practicing physician, of Greensboro, N. C. Personal, professional and family correspondence, genealogical papers, and other material, of Brodnax and three generations of his family. Pre-Civil War letters refer to the sale of slaves; wartime correspondence reflects fear of the advancing Union forces. Postwar papers include Brodnax's appointment as assistant surgeon general of a hospital at Petersburg, Va., and his oath of allegiance to the United States. Includes his letters to Mrs. Brodnax, beginning in 1831; a speech against railroad taxation in 1879; petitions (1877) asking that Brodnax be made superintendent of the North Carolina State Insane Asylum; and an undated article on optical surgery. Many papers concern Mrs. Brodnax's activities in patriotic societies; others relate to attendance of family members at various North Carolina and Virginia schools and colleges. Letters from Mrs. Barr, an aunt of Mrs. Brodnax, relate experiences in Germany and elsewhere in Europe (1877-84). Letters from Mexico largely relate to the unsettled state of the country during the 1910 revolution. Some papers deal with the settlement of the estate of John Brodnax, Jr., after 1909; there is also a group of sermons by James Kerr Burch, a Presbyterian minister.

Physician and scientist. The early papers include letters written by Morrow to his parents while a student at Davidson College and Franklin College, and while at Charleston, S. C., regarding personal and religious matters; others concern cotton transactions. Of chief significance are papers describing Morrow's duties as agricultural scientist to Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry's expedition to Japan (1852-54), subsequent differences with Perry over the description of plants secured on the expedition, and a letter from Asa Gray to Morrow regarding this controversy and the publication of Morrow's journal of the voyage. Other papers concern the sale of land warrants in Wisconsin, experiments with gold mining processes, Southern attitudes toward the Lincoln administration, and Morrow's plans to manufacture guns for South Carolina during the Civil War. Papers following Morrow's death relate to business affairs of his wife, Jeannette Morrow. Correspondents and persons named include James Adger, Thomas Smyth, James Henley Thornwell, William Learned Marcy, C. T. Physician and farmer, of Earlyville, Va. Correspondence, professional bills, and accounts. Papers of the earlier years are concerned with prices and shipment of corn, meal, plaster, wheat, flour, and tobacco, from commission firms; later papers include bills for professional services. Personal letters of James S. Hamm, Alabama lawyer, written during the 1840's, give details of Alabama social life and customs, and describe the murder of Sidney S. Perry by John A. Winston, State senator and later Governor of Alabama. Civil War letters deal with Birckhead's work with a committee for the aid of indigent families of soldiers. Letters to Birckhead's daughter Millie, from friends and former schoolmates at Piedmont Female Academy, are more concerned with social life than with the war. Postwar papers include accounts of the estates of Nehemiah Birckhead and William P. Wilkerson, of which Edward Birckhead was executor.

Papers, 1819-90.

626 items.

In Duke University Library.

Personal correspondence of a North Carolina family, mainly dating from the Civil War years. The bulk of the letters were written to Catherine McGeachy, schoolteacher of Robeson Co., by her brother, cousins, and friends; many contain observations and opinions on current events as seen by private soldiers. Much detail is given on Confederate service and operations in the coastal areas of North Carolina, near Weldon, Garysburg, Kinston, New Bern, and Forts Fisher and Caswell in the Wilmington area; the letters describe camp life, troop movements, hardships, casualties, sickness, and hospital conditions. Various battles are described; letters from women of the family reveal the lack of small necessities and the fear of freed Negroes. Postwar letters comment on the Reconstruction period and problems relating to free Negro labor and financial difficulties; other family letters are from friends and relatives who attended Trinity, Wofford, and Davidson Colleges, discussing student life and the writers' reactions to current political trends. Later papers relate to Catherine McGeachy's marriage to Duncan A. Bule and her service as postmistress at Bule, Robeson Co., N. C.

Simpson family.

Papers of the Simpson and Biddle families, 1764-1805. 3588 items and 11 v.

In Duke University Library.

Business and personal correspondence, account books, and other papers of four generations of the New Bern (N. C.) families; most papers date from the years 1830-75. Includes papers of John Simpson, a locally prominent Revolutionary figure; his son Samuel; and his great-grandson Samuel Simpson Biddle, a planter, merchant, and politician. Much of John Simpson's correspondence relates to his business, to property interests in Boston, and to land purchases and contracts. The Samuel Simpson Biddle papers deal with his education at the University of North Carolina, and with his agricultural and business activities in the 1840's and 1850's. Later letters are concerned with the education of Biddle's children at various academies and colleges. Papers of William P. Biddle and other Baptist ministers contain information on Baptist churches in the Fort Barnwell and New Bern areas. Letters of the Civil War period give many comments on conditions in Virginia and North Carolina, the war along the coast, troop movements, camp life, and related matters; many refer to generals, including Beauregard and Hampton, and to Governors Vance and Holden of North Carolina.

Beauregard, Pierre Gustave Toutant, 1818-1893.

Papers, 1844-93.

378 items.

In Duke University Library.

Confederate commander, railroad president, and Louisiana adjutant general. Most papers relate to the Civil War, although there are earlier items, including a memorandum on the fortification of Jalapa, Mexico (1847). Items of Civil War interest include a letter from Jefferson Davis offering his services to the Confederacy, a memorandum on the commands of Fort Sumter, notes on a conference conducted by Davis in 1863 regarding the campaign before Vicksburg, a letter relating to Lee's 1862 campaign against McClellan, and letters of Davis and Samuel Cooper immediately after First Manassas. Other letters are concerned with troop movements, operations, supply shortages, military appointments, and desertions. Postwar papers include comments on the abilities of various officers, on articles and books about the war, on the origin of the Confederate battle flag, on Reconstruction and politics in Louisiana, on supposed Northern corruption and despotism, and Thomas J. Jackson's acquisition of the sobriquet "Stonewall." Includes a copy of a letter from Beauregard to Isham G. Harris concerning the Shiloh campaign of 1862. Correspondents include Roger A. Pryor, John C. Breckinridge, Samuel Cooper, Jefferson Davis, Joseph E. Johnston, Robert E. Lee, James Longstreet, Howell Cobb, George A. Trenholm, Augusta Jane (Evans) Wilson, Marcus J. Wright, and John W. Jones.

In Kansas State University Library and Dept. of History.

Cattleman, writer, individualist, and farm organization leader, of Grand Junction, Colo., and Manhattan, Kan. Correspondence, photos, press releases, speeches, pamphlets, and other papers. The earlier Dan D. Casement material relates to his student years at Princeton; later papers largely concern his service as president of the short-lived Farmers' Independence Council of America (1935-38); includes much correspondence and publicity material pertaining to the Council's anti-New Deal farm program. About 50 letters are from William Allen White to Casement. A large collection of papers of Casement's father, John S. Casement, Civil War Union Army officer and railroad builder, includes Army commissions signed by Abraham Lincoln and Edwin M. Stanton; letters written while in military service; a large group of letters concerned with the building of the Union Pacific Railroad from Omaha to Promontory Point, Utah; a Spanish bill of lading dating from the 1790's; and a land patent signed by Patrick Henry while Governor of Virginia. The material, with some artifacts, was collected by James C. Carey, professor of history at the University.

13,557 items and 47 v.

In Duke University Library.

Lawyer, political leader, ironmaster, railroad promoter, and banker, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. Correspondence and business papers reflecting the major part played by Bell and his family in the economic development of central Pennsylvania and other areas. Among the subjects dealt with are the building of internal improvements, the charcoal iron industry in the Juniata Valley, land titles and speculation, the early growth of the Pennsylvania Railroad under J. Edgar Thomson and others, tariff bills, the economic cycle of booms and depressions, the evolution of the monetary and banking system, telegraph companies, coal mining, Lake Superior copper mining, and Bell's active interest in Whig and Republican Party politics. Papers of the Civil War period illustrate the impact of the conflict on the business community in the North, and on the people of Pennsylvania during Confederate raids and invasions. Some papers relate to tests of Pennsylvania iron made at the Washington Navy Yard by Captain Dahlgren, to Bell's service as agent of Jay Cooke in floating Federal loans in Pennsylvania, and to the effect of the war on the banking system.

Correspondence, legal papers, clippings, and other papers of the King and Queen Co. (Va.) family. Letters (1862-64) from Major John Robert Bagby, 34th Va. Regiment, to his wife, Elizabeth Pollard Fleet Bagby, describing action at Williamsburg, Va., in 1864; some aspects of the siege of Charleston, S. C., in 1863; and Baptist activities in the Confederate Army. Also refers to Generals P. G. T. Beauregard, William Booth Taliaferro, and Henry A. Wise; includes descriptions of life at Allegheny and Coyner Springs in 1862. Other letters describe College Hill, Md., in 1860; Miller School, Albemarle Co., Va., in 1904, mentioning pupils and teachers; life in Huletts, Wyo., 1900; and municipal election in Newport News, Va., 1898. Among the family legal papers is Major Bagby's parole as a prisoner of war; a clipping gives the roster of G Company, 26th Va. Infantry. Among the families mentioned are Braxton, Carlton, Courtney, Diggs, Eubank, Gresham, Latané, Redd, and Ryland.

Beaumarchais, Pierre Augustin Caron de, 1732-1799.

Papers, 1767-1832.

140 items.

In William L. Clements Library (Ann Arbor, Mich.) Division of Manuscripts.

French playwright and diplomat; friend of the American Colonies during the Revolution. Letters and documents of Beaumarchais, of his wife, Marie Thérèse Amélie Willermault de Beaumarchais, and of their daughter, Amélie Eugénie de Beaumarchais de la Rue. The letters cover the period of Beaumarchais' service to the French King as a secret service agent, his literary productivity, and his activities in the American and French Revolutions; many papers concern his unsuccessful effort to supply the French National Convention with muskets from Holland, his arrest for treason (1792), and his subsequent exile.

Described in Guide to the manuscript collections in the William L. Clements Library, compiled by H. H. Peckham (1942). More than 100 of the items were published in Lettres inédites de Beaumarchais, de Mme de Beaumarchais et de leur fille Eugénie, publiées d'après les originaux de la "Clements Library" par Gilbert Chinard (1929). Letters for 1791-99 were listed in the catalog of Sotheby and Co., Nov. 16-17, 1925, items 239.

Government official. Correspondence and other papers, mainly for 1897-1901, relating to Chilton's service as chief of the Consular Bureau, U. S. Dept. of State, with a few personal papers. Much material relates to personnel in the consular service, and consists of inquiries concerning consuls, applications for positions in the service, salary inequalities, housing problems in overseas stations, notably Japan, and the incompetence of certain consuls. Some papers relate to efforts to accomplish reforms, among them the reorganization bill introduced by Robert Adams; other letters reveal the attempts of Senators Julius C. Burrows and Marcus A. Hanna to influence the appointment of consuls. Much material pertains to American commerce and the establishment of trade relations, and to foreign relations generally. Letters of Hubbard T. Smith, consul at Canton, tell of the persecution of missionaries in China. Of interest is a facsim. of a letter (1808) written by Mary Lamb, with a postscript by Charles Lamb. Some early commodity price lists (1808-83) are included. Among the persons mentioned in the letters are James Burrell Angell, William Rufus Day, Fitzhugh Lee, William McKinley, George Dewey, Eugene Hale, Robert Patterson, Spencer Eddy, and Joseph Richards.

ca. 12,000 items and 70 v.

In Historical Society of Pennsylvania collections.

Largely the papers of Samuel Coates and John Reynell, merchants and importers of Philadelphia. Chiefly commercial papers, business correspondence, ledgers, daybooks, and other accounts; other items relate to Indian affairs, the development of frontier lands, medicine, finance, and family matters. Papers and business records of other family members include those of Josiah Coates, George M. Coates, Samuel Coates, Sr., Mary Coates, and physician's records of Benjamin H. Coates. Many papers concern the settlement of various family estates. These include accounts of Joseph Stansbury with Samuel Coates and Ezekiel Edwards, and the daybook of the estate of John Vicary. Papers and accounts of the Deborah Morris estate include a ledger and memoranda of Benjamin Morris. Many Zane family papers, accumulated when Samuel Coates served as executor for Isaac Zane, are included, among them papers relating to the Marlboro Iron Works (1772-1808), lists of Isaac Zane's books and other goods, and receipt books of Sarah Zane and Charles Meredith.

Journal of Isaac Zane's travels among the Indians of Wyoming (Pa.) in 1758 published in Pennsylvania magazine of history and biography, v. 30 (1906) p. 417-426. Collection described in v. 69 (1935) p. 316-318.

Barnsley family.

Papers, 1824-73.

3067 items and 1 v.

In Duke University Library.

Correspondence, accounts, lists, invoices, bills, receipts, and ledger of the Savannah family, largely of Godfrey Barnsley, agent for Liverpool import and export brokers, and his children. Correspondence among the children, accounts with physicians, price lists for building materials for Barnsley's estate "Woodlands," records of cotton sales and imports, letters from three sons who attended preparatory school in Massachusetts, and from three daughters at a school near Macon, Ga. Much material concerns Harold Barnsley, who traveled over New England and the northern United States, to China, and on the seas; other papers refer to the service of sons in the Civil War and to depredations suffered by the family. Beginning in 1837 there are letters from sons who joined an ex-Confederate group which migrated to South America: George, a physician; and Lucien, who at different times operated a rice mill, apothecary's shop, brick manufactory, and gold mine in Brazil. These letters describe the natives, the countryside, and political, social, and economic conditions in the Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro areas.

In Historical Society of Pennsylvania collections.

Physician, clergyman, and merchant. The Journal for 1776-77 is a narrative of Beebe's participation in the campaign against Canada during the Revolution, during which he served as regimental surgeon; he describes battles, troop movements, commanding officers, ravages of disease (chiefly smallpox) in camps, and economic and social aspects of the period. Later journals (1799-1800, 1800-01) contain notes of a journey from New England to Virginia, with details on facilities of travel, characteristics of inhabitants of the States traversed, their religious sentiments, education, sports and recreation, economic and social conditions, and other data. He discusses the political controversies of the period, particularly the election of Jefferson, and the contest between Democratic and Federalist factions. The journal for 1776 is published in Pennsylvania magazine of history and biography, v. 59, no. 4 (Oct. 1935) p. 821-861.

40,000 items and 2 v.

In Historical Society of Pennsylvania collections.

In part, photocopies.

Diplomat, banker, businessman, and statesman. Mainly papers concerning administration of his estate, which was largely invested in undeveloped lands in Pennsylvania, New York, and Maine. Papers pertaining to Maine lands include most of the important papers connected with the Knox-Duer purchase of Maine lands in 1791; descriptions of the country, surveyors' field books, and similar accounts of Maine in the 1790's; papers dealing with the attempt to plant a French colony in Maine under Madame Leval; documents connected with the transfer of this purchase to William Bingham in 1792-93; a series of letters (1793-95) from William Jackson, while he was in Europe attempting to sell Maine lands to English capitalists and the French government; correspondence with Generals Henry Knox, Henry Jackson, and David Cobb, all concerned with the development of the purchase; material connected with the sale of one half of the Penobscot Tract in 1796 to Alexander Baring, acting for the house of Baring and Hope; letters from Harrison Gray Otis, Thomas Russell, John and Stephen Codman, John Richards, and other prominent Massachusetts citizens (1791-1890); papers explanatory of the suit of Cabot et al v. Bingham, arising from Bingham's actions while agent for the Continental Congress in Martinique (1779-1804); reports on Maine developments from Gen. David Cobb, John Black, and other agents (1793-1850); reports of the trustees of the Bingham estate on the Maine property, together with their correspondence with various agents (1804-50); and numerous accounts, vouchers, deeds, contracts and court papers illuminating almost every phase of this venture from its inception in 1791 to about 1850. Similar papers relating to Pennsylvania and New York lands contain many letters and reports from the agent at Wellsboro (1855-1917), to the trustees of the estate; a few letters (1870-1911) mention oil leases. Early papers (1777-79) relate to Bingham's business interests; a letter-press volume (1791-93) relates to social, political, and financial events, and to political and economic leaders of the early national period; some letters (1783-84) from William Bingham in Europe to Thomas Willing deal with business matters.

Kellogg, Frank Billings, 1856-1937.

Papers, 1907-37.

21 v. and 33 boxes.

In Minnesota Historical Society collections.

In part, transcripts (typewritten)

Lawyer, U. S. Senator from Minnesota, Ambassador to Gt. Brit., Secretary of State, and Judge. Correspondence, speeches, press releases, memoranda, scrapbooks, and other papers. The few papers before Kellogg became a U. S. Senator relate mainly to his activities as a government attorney in investigations of the Edward H. Harriman trusts by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The correspondence during his term as a Senator reflects his interest in post-war foreign affairs, food relief, refugee problems, and the agricultural depression of the early 1920's. Papers for the period in which Kellogg served as Ambassador to Great Britain include material on the International Conference at London, 1924, his work in England, and observations on Minnesota and national politics. A large part of the collection pertains to State Dept. affairs from 1925-29 when Kellogg was Secretary of State and includes material on international conferences, the Tacna-Arica dispute, Mexican problems, China's tariff and extraterritoriality laws, disarmament, world peace, other foreign affairs, and domestic politics. Correspondents include Calvin Coolidge, Henry P. Fletcher, Hugh Gibson, William Randolph Hearst, Charles Evans Hughes, William Lassiter, Walter Lippmann, Walter Littlefield, Robert McCormick, Charles J. Moos, Dwight Morrow, Robert E. Olds, Frank J. Otis, John J. Pershing, Mrs. Ogden Reid, Theodore Roosevelt, Ellihu Root, Leo S. Rowe, Thomas D. Schall, Cordenlo Severance, James R. Papers, 1778-1813.

ca. 200 items.

In Historical Society of Pennsylvania collections.

Physician and naturalist; professor of medicine at the College of Philadelphia. Correspondence, notes and scientific observations, memorabilia, and travel and research journals. The journals (1789-1803) contain accounts of travel in the United States and abroad; research in botany, mineralogy, anthropology, and zoology; observations on frontier settlements and Indian tribes; and descriptions of the physical condition of the land. Chief interest centers in the journal for 1789, which describes Barton's voyage on the Apollo from Gravesend, Eng., to Philadelphia; in it Barton reports conversations with John Pemberton, a Quaker preacher, about the early settlements in Pennsylvania and about the lives of Benjamin West and William Penn. Among the correspondents are Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Joseph Priestley, John Drayton, L. Valentine, and Frederick Rush.

The journal of the Apollo voyage is published in Pennsylvania magazine of history and biography, v. 9 (1885) p. 334-338.

Kentucky lawyer and statesman. Family and political correspondence, scrapbooks, letter book, and speeches relating to Crittenden's service as Kentucky legislator and Governor, as Member of both Houses of Congress, and as Cabinet officer. The papers contain information on political life and public issues of Kentucky and the nation during the ante bellum period, with significant material concerning Crittenden's efforts to avert the Civil War by means of a compromise plan in 1861. Other papers pertain to the private life of the family, and to the publication of the Life of John J. Crittenden, by his daughter, Mary Ann Butler (Crittenden) Coleman (1871). Includes unpublished letters from Thomas Hart Benton, James Buchanan, William Butler, Henry Clay, Ann Mary Butler (Crittenden) Coleman, Millard Fillmore, Andrew Jackson, James Madison, John Marshall, James Monroe, Franklin Pierce, Winfield Scott, William H. Seward, Alexander H. Stephens, Benjamin Taylor, Zachary Taylor, John Tyler, and Daniel Webster.

Indexed in part. Much of the correspondence was published in Mrs. Coleman's book.

Microfilm (negative) made from originals owned by Walter L. Pforzheimer.

Author. Letters and MS. of a chapter of one of Cable's novels, Dr. Servier. The letters (mainly 1885-91) are largely concerned with Cable's literary activities and reflect his gradual break with the South. For the most part they were written by Cable to the editors of The Century, Richard Watson Gilder and Robert U. Johnson, and relate to the final editing and publication of some of his short stories and novels. Some mention is made of Cable's work as a reformer, with references to the problem of southern prisons, to the Negro problem, to criticism of himself by southern newspapers, and to the fact that his reform articles were always non-political. Family matters are also mentioned and there are a few letters to admirers and to persons seeking autographs.

Lawyer and political leader, of Pontotoc, Miss. Personal, political, legal, and military correspondence, much of which relates to Fontaine's activities in the American or Know Nothing Party, which nominated Fontaine for Governor in 1855. The largest group of papers is for the period 1847-56. Some correspondence concerns Fontaine's father, Patrick Henry Fontaine, a grandson of Patrick Henry and an early settler of Pontotoc Co., who served as surveyor of lands in Mississippi ceded by the Chickasaws. Letters of the 1860's are largely personal correspondence of Charles D. Fontaine, his wife Sally Ann Dandridge Fontaine, and their sons. A significant group includes letters of Edward Fontaine, an Episcopal minister of Columbus, Miss., who later went to Texas. Other correspondents include John M. Allen, P. G. T. Beauregard, C. A.
